

Dear South Street customers:

South Street Brewery is issuing a recall on 12oz. bottles of Batch 45 Satan's Pony code dated 11/5/17 (both the batch number and code date are clearly marked in the "enjoy by" window on the side of the bottle).

This batch has a wild yeast contamination that is causing refermentation in bottles when left warm for an extended period. Please note this is not a health hazard insofar as consumption of the beer; the concern, however, is the potential for bottles to rupture.

If you have purchased this beer (and have proof of purchase) and had a less-than-stellar experience because of over carbonation or foaming, please contact us at martha@southstreetbrewery.com so we can attempt to compensate you.

Quality and customer satisfaction are top of mind for us at South Street, and we sincerely apologize for the quality error.

Sincerely,

Taylor Smack
South Street Brewery
